

Interactive comment on “Usefulness of high resolution coastal models for operational oil spill forecast: the Full City accident” by G. Broström et al.

G. Broström et al.

goran.brostrom@met.no

Received and published: 30 September 2011

Perhaps it was somewhat bad wording, it was never meant to imply that it is a reliable quantity because it is calculated by well-established institutions. Thus the wording has been reversed. We has also included the reference and indicated that the error may be up to 50%. Unfortunately, there is no wave buoy in this area and we cannot perform any detailed analysis based on observations. However, the remark points toward important research for the future.

Interactive comment on Ocean Sci. Discuss., 8, 1467, 2011.