Dear Dr. Zhang and co-authors,

As you know, I've had some concern that language issues would present a difficulty in review. This does not necessarily reflect on the scientific content of your paper, but only on the difficulty that potential reviewers may encounter with the English presentation.

In order to proceed with the review process we are requiring a technical language edit. If you choose to arrange for such an editing to be performed, please let me know when you anticipate being able to resubmit a revised version of the manuscript for further consideration. I've informed the journal staff that we will need to extend the Discussion
